Huguenot Band Will Perform At 2009 Chick-fil-A Bowl in Atlanta

Fundraising events planned for Nov. 24 and Dec. 10

The award-winning Huguenot High School Marching Falcons Band has been invited to play at the 2009 Chick-fil-A Bowl on Dec. 31 at the Georgia Dome in Atlanta.

“We’re thrilled and extremely proud to participate in this year’s Chick-fil-A Bowl,” said Christopher Moseley, band director at Huguenot. “Our band members will entertain nearly 75,000 people inside the Georgia Dome during the pre-game and halftime shows, and we’ll also take part in the parade and jazz band competition.”

Band members are currently raising funds to help pay for the trip. On November 24 from 5 to 8 p.m., Tropical Smoothie Café will donate 15 percent of its sales to the band. On Dec. 10 from 5 to 8 p.m., the band will hold a special spirit night at the Stratford Hills Chick-fil-A located at 7125 Forest Hill Ave. Chick-fil-A will donate 20 percent of that evening’s receipts to the band.

People who would like to make a direct donation may send a check payable to: Huguenot High School, Attention: Christopher Moseley, Band Director, 7945 Forest Hill Ave., Richmond, VA 23225.

This year, the Marching Falcons have won awards at the Nansemond River High School Band Day, the I.C. Norcom Band Day and the Highland Springs Band Day competitions. The band also received a rating of excellent at the Virginia Band and Orchestra Directors Association Marching Band Festival held in Williamsburg.
